

Absolutely - I am absolutely against using cellular telephones on airplanes during flight!!!! It can be bad enough with the long security lines, etc., that by the time the passengers reach the airplane, they are already anxious and tense, some wanting extra attention and wanting to argue. And, NOW, with the greedy executives running the airlines - there is no room to breath with the extra seats that have been installed - the cramped quarters in which passengers have to travel only add to the quality-poor experience they are encountering during their flight. Therefore, do you see ANY REASON IN THE WORLD for the passengers to be allowed to use their phones during a flight???????????????????? NO NO NO NO NO It would just give cause to more arguing between passengers. Other passengers will be asking US - the flight attendants - to tell the other passengers to talk more quietly or to get off of the phone altogether. Besides, why not just sit back, relax, and enjoy the flight! - READ, SLEEP, listen to music. Do we have to be constantly be in touch? Also, there is already enough RADIATION circulating around us in the air - do we need more of it? NO NO NO NO NO NO!!!
